

DOLLAR WHEAT ON THE CHANGE

December Hits The High Places In Chicago
This Morning Amid Much Excitement.

IS WINTER CROP ENTIRELY RUINED?

Wild Scene Enacted In The Chicago Wheat Pit Where Fortunes Are Made And Lost In A Few Hours By Speculators.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Chicago, May 13.—Dollar wheat was a "crazy" thing when and the wildest kind of excitement a dollar three was bid and taken in the Chicago wheat pit. December wheat had the call and rose from 95, the closing price Saturday, to 1.03 shortly after the opening. Later it dropped back as demand slackened, to 99. It closed at a trifle above 99.

July Wheat

July opened at 93 to 94 over the closing Saturday of 89½, stood high at 97, dropping to 95½ to 96 on closing. September also took an upward move, opening at 95 to 99 over a 93½ closing Saturday, touched a dollar and then closed at 97½. It appears to be the last squeeze of the speculators and little inconvenience was experienced as the majority are long.

Options Open Strong

Options opened strong, 1½ to 8 cents higher. While options dropped from opening price they closed four to one-eighth higher than opening. The flurry was caused by the report that December wheat was badly injured and the crop would be small. The demand came from all parts of the United States and caused considerable flurry on the market.

Dealt Heavily

Many dealers dealt heavily at the opening, but the demand and continual selling apparently had no impression on the market and prices advanced steadily.

TRIED TO SWINDLE IN SEVERAL WAYS

Gentleman Tramp Worked Hospital
Matron, Stole Violin And Attempted to Defraud Jeweler.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Oconto, Wis., May 11.—Joseph Higginson, residence, nowhere in particular, is a wily cuss. He is in jail for stealing a violin. He came from Stiles, Mich., where, said he, he was hurt in a lumber mill. He received treatment at Mrs. Burke's hospital here, on the strength of money he claimed to have coming.

After recovering sufficiently, Higginson went to S. W. Klass' jewelry store here and said Mrs. Burke sent him to get an alarm clock. Next Higginson's eyes fell on a silver bracelet. He wanted that, too. After that, Mrs. Burke wanted some silver spoons, whereas Klass became suspicious and ventured to guess that Mrs. Burke was particularly and had better pick out the spoons herself. After Higginson left, Mrs. Burke was called up by phone and said she hadn't sent Higginson for anything at all. Klass shook hands with himself.

Meanwhile Higginson went down the street and landed in J. H. Carr's eating emporium and stole a violin for want of something better to lay his hands on; it is charged.

Higginson was traced to Lona and arrested after a chase in which half the village took part. When arrested Higginson was coaxing the engineer of a freight train with a hot box to give him a ride, as he had whipped a fellow, he said, and several people were after him.

RESIDED IN ROCK COUNTY SINCE '46

Mrs. Maryetta Spears Died at Home of Scott Smith in La Prairie
at Midnight.

Mrs. Maryetta Spears, a resident of Rock county for over sixty years, died at the home of her son-in-law, Scott Smith, in the town of La Prairie, at midnight. She was taken sick with bronchitis a week ago and that with general debility resulted in her demise. The deceased was born in Canada nearly ninety-two years ago and came to Rock county in 1846. She was well known among the pioneers of the county and all will mourn with her son, Byron Spears of Springfield, Missouri, and her grandchildren. A daughter, Mrs. Scott Smith, died in March. The funeral will be held from the home Wednesday afternoon at one o'clock and interment will be in Janesville.

Taken to County House: William Lambert of Beloit, a victim of delirium tremens, was taken to the county house this morning.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Concord, N. H., May 13.—This was the date originally fixed for hearing the arguments before the superior court in the matter of the petition of Henry M. Baker, Josiah E. Fernald and Archibald McClellan, the trustees to whom Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy has transferred the management of her affairs, that they be substituted for the "next friends" in the attempt to secure an accounting of Mrs. Eddy's property. By agreement of court and counsel for both parties to the proceedings the hearing has been postponed for one week.

REAL ANNIVERSARY DAY AT JAMESTOWN

Just Three Hundred Years Ago Today
Captain Newport Established
Permanent Settlement.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Norfolk, Va., May 13.—It was exactly three hundred years ago today that Captain Newport and his little band of colonists established the first permanent English settlement on American soil. The anniversary was celebrated at Jamestown Island today, and the celebration will live in the history of the Old Dominion. The attendance at the exercises was large, the program well arranged, and the men assigned to the oratorical efforts worthy of the honor bestowed upon them. Ambassador Bryce, as the official representative of England, delivered the principal address of the day. Governor Swanson and other eminent representatives of the state of Virginia were on hand, as were also the officials of the Jamestown Exposition and leading spirits of the Society for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities, which society had a leading part in arranging the celebration. No effort was made by the promoters of the celebration to secure a large attendance of visitors from over Virginia, as it was realized that the most of these will defer their trip to the exposition until next month when an entire week on the exposition calendar has been set aside as a "home coming" week for Virginians and the sons of Virginia who have found homes in other states.

CHILD SAVING AND CRIME PREVENTION

Principal Topics Discussed at National Congress of Mothers in Los Angeles.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Los Angeles, Calif., May 13.—Child-saving work and the prevention of crime were the chief topics considered this morning when the National Congress of Mothers reassembled. Mrs. Frank R. Hill of Tacoma, president of the Washington Congress of Mothers, led the discussion. An excellent program has been prepared for the tenth anniversary session this evening. The scheduled speakers include Margaret E. Sangster, Mrs. Frederic Schöff, president of the congress, and Mrs. Theodore W. Birney of Atlanta, the founder and first president of the congress. The work of the congress during the ten years of its existence will be reviewed and plans for its future activities discussed.

RAILWAY OPERATORS IN BIENNIAL MEET

Four Hundred Delegates Represent ing Nearly Every Line in United States, Canada and Mexico.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Minneapolis, Minn., May 13.—The Order of Railway Telegraphers, one of the strongest of the organizations of railroad employees, assembled in biennial convention here today and will remain in session a week or ten days. More than 400 delegates are in attendance and they represent nearly all the prominent railroad systems of the United States, Canada and Mexico. The president is H. B. Perham of St. Louis and the secretary and treasurer, L. W. Quick of the same city. Their reports prepared for the convention show that the past year has been one of unusual activity for the order. The telegraphers on several prominent railroads have been "unionized" and notable wage increases and better hours and working conditions have been secured almost everywhere.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., May 13.—A rumor was circulated this morning that Congressman Esch would withdraw from the race for the senatorship, but Esch said: "Not yet." A blind ballot was taken this noon in joint convention, cue vote only for each candidate. The republican caucus resumes tonight. Movement toward Dinean, McGregor seems increasing. The members declare they will elect a senator surely this week.

ADMIRAL BROWNSON HEAD OF NAVIGATION BUREAU

Succeeds Rear Admiral George A. Converse Who Reached Age Limit Nearly A Year Ago.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Washington, D. C., May 13.—An important change in naval circles takes place this week, when Rear Admiral Willard H. Brownson, recently in command of the Asiatic station, assumes his new duties as chief of the bureau of navigation. Rear Admiral Brownson succeeds Rear Admiral George A. Converse, who was retired for age nearly a year ago. Rear Admiral Converse asked to be relieved of his official duties at the time of his retirement, but the President asked him to remain for a time, as it was deemed inadvisable then to withdraw Rear Admiral Brownson from the command of the Asiatic station.

Rear Admiral Brownson, the new chief of the bureau of navigation, has a high reputation in the navy for efficiency. He was born in New York and graduated from the Naval Academy in 1865. Since then he has seen all kinds of service. He has done scientific work for the coast survey, was in the hydrographic office, for four years, was commandant of cadets at the Naval Academy for four years and superintendent of that institution from 1902 to 1906, when he was assigned to the command of the division of armored cruisers, and took them around to the other side of the world, where he succeeded the late Admiral Train in command of the Asiatic fleet.

Few officers now in the navy have had more stirring adventures than has Rear Admiral Brownson. When he was a midshipman in the old Mohegan, on the Pacific station, he had a brush with a gang of pirates that was quite as exciting and sensational as any chapter in yellow fiction. The Mohegan was cruising near Mazatlan, Mexico, when the citizens of that port appealed to Captain Lowe, her command-der, for protection against a freebooter, who was killing innocent citizens, looting unprotected towns and committing depredations all along the coast.

Lowe promised to look after the pirates and soon located them somewhere in an almost inaccessible cluster of lagoons. When Capt. Lowe discovered the snug harbor of the pirates he detailed Midshipman Brownson, with a boat's crew, to hunt them down. When Brownson reached their refuge the pirate schooner appeared to be deserted. She looked as if she had been abandoned, but the moment the Yankee sailors clambered over the side of the vessel they were attacked by a volley from the limbs of the trees and other dense vegetation around them. Their pirates, finding that they were pursued, had arranged an ambush, and climbed the trees, where they could command the deck of their schooner.

Realizing he could not capture the culprits under such a disadvantage, Brownson conceived a plan that was equally effective and much safer. He ordered his men below decks to escape the galling fire that was pouring down upon them, and in a few moments started a dozen or more fires in the hold of the vessel. As soon as they were fairly ablaze he gathered up his dead and wounded, hurried them into his boat and got away from the scene as rapidly as possible. Before he was out of hearing the vessel was a mass of flames and the pirates were marooned in the swamp without ammunition or food. All their supplies and the booty they had brought away from their looting expeditions were consumed with the ship, and the local authorities were able to capture or kill all of them. The people of Mazatlan expressed their gratitude by presenting Brownson with a silver service bearing an appropriate inscription.

WAS CELEBRATED

MR. AND MRS. THURSTON MASON
MARRIED TWENTY-FIVE YEARS.

DELIGHTFUL EVENING SPENT

Many Guests from Out of the City
Were Present—Dainty
Gifts in Silver.

Mr. and Mrs. Thurston L. Mason of 105 South Second street celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary on Saturday evening last. Invited guests and relatives numbering forty sat down at nine o'clock to a dainty two-course supper which was served by two nieces of Mrs. Mason, Miss Rada Merrick of Burlington and Miss Alice Merrick of this city. The entire house was tastefully decorated with feathers and potted plants, red and green being the color scheme. Prominent among the decorations was the United States flag awarded Mrs. Mason last spring in the Gazette voting contest.
After supper had been served a most delightful hour was spent by the guests in a post-prandial program.
Miss Paulson acted as toastmistress and called on Mrs. J. T. Wright to respond to the past Mrs. Wright read a charming poem depicting the past life of Mr. and Mrs. Mason. Mrs. O.
W. Athon then responded to the toast,
"The Present," in a charming manner and Rev. J. W. Laughlin's toast, "The Future," concluded the speaking. Miss Rada Merrick then gave several vocal selections and Mr. George Rathjen also favored the company with two selections. Mr. and Mrs. Mason were the recipients of many gifts in silver in commemoration of their silver anniversary. All of Mrs. Mason's relatives except a sister, Mrs. Laura Fernold of Winthrop, Iowa, who was delayed by sickness in the family, and a brother from Hebron, Illinois, who was unable to attend, were present.
Those present from out of the city were: Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Merrick and Miss Rada Merrick of Burlington; Mr.
and Mrs. C. D. Merrick and Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Merrick of Chicago; Mr.
W. E. Merrick of Grand Rapids; Mr.

STRUCK ON FOREHEAD
BY A HEAVY CASTING

John Russell, an Employee of the Rock River Machine Co., Injured in Peculiar Manner.
While engaged in the work of loading a car, John Russell, an employe of the Rock River Machine Co., was struck a glancing blow on the forehead just above the eyes, on Saturday, by a falling casting and a gush two inches long inflicted. The slipping of the chain on the hoisting devise was responsible for the accident.

It was a narrow escape for the eyes,
both of which were blackened. Dr.
W. H. Judd dressed the injuries.

STARTING WEDGE IN A SYSTEM OF DRIVES

C. L. DeForest Has a Plan to Make Janesville More Beautiful—
New Road Planned.

C. L. DeForest has an idea, which if carried out, would mean the beginning of beautifying Janesville and developing a series of drives throughout the city that would be a delight to all horse-owners or automobilists. Advocate of the plan, Mr. DeForest suggests that Oak Hill avenue, running into the Oak Hill Cemetery from Magnolia avenue, be made a street worthy of the name and not a cow-path that it now is. He suggests that the roadway be straightened out by the purchase of a gift of adjacent property and that a good road, twenty-four feet wide, be made. The cost would be minimum and the benefit derived would be large. The road continues south from Magnolia avenue and in time Mr. DeForest believes it could be improved as far as Pleasant street, making a beautiful driveway.
The cost, he is certain, will not be great and the benefits would be manifest. Madison has a system of drives, kept up by public subscription, that has done much to beautify the surrounding country. The plan of Mr.
DeForest would be an opening wedge in a similar project. He calls the council's attention to the matter and it is possible that steps may be taken to straighten Oak Hill Avenue out and make a passable street.

themselves in first rank among the amateur baseball teams of the city.
The game was played on Sloan's pasture and ended with a score of 8 and
5. The Athletics knocked Butters out of the box and Howard completed the game as twirler for the Indians.
Graves caught for the losers and the line-up of the victorious nine follows:
C. Brummond; p. Carroll; 1b, Holtz;
2b, W. Zenger; ss and p. O. Schmidt; 3b, Madden; cf, Podewell; of, C. Biers, captain and manager; rf, Maulter.
Next Sunday the Athletics will meet the Beloit White Sox at Yost's Park.
Another Blackhawks Defeat.
Another team from the ravine, the Blackhawk Juniors, were beaten yesterday, scoring but 5 against the 22 of their opponents, the Fourth Ward Juniors. Noonan and Hammlund formed the Blackhawk battery, and Doran and Stewart held the big places on the victorious team.
Afton, 30; White Sox, 4.
At Afton yesterday the Afton Tigers walloped the Beloit White Sox to the tune of 30 to 4. The Afton team will meet different Janesville aggregations
during the summer.
K. of H. C., 6; Y. M. C. A., 4.
The first game in the Janesville Junior league was played at Athletic Park Saturday afternoon. The Knights of the Holy Cross of Trinity church were victors of the Y. M. C. A. Juniors by a 6 and 4 score. Up to the fourth inning both sides were shut out. The same nines will play again next Saturday.
Spintners, 20; Scrubs, 0.
The Lewis Knitting Company
Browns played a practice game at the Park Saturday afternoon, trimming a picked nine 30 to 0.

JUDGE A. D. WICKHAM
IS NOW A BOARDER
AT THE COUNTY FARM

Was Justice of the Peace Here in 1878—Hale and Hearty at Age of 89.

Josiah T. Wright, while visiting at the county buildings yesterday, was surprised to meet among others his old friend, Judge A. D. Wickham, who has secured pleasant quarters there as a boarder. "As he sat at the noon meal," says Mr. Wright, "his appearance and pleasant manners reminded one of his former dignified sittings while holding court only a few years ago." The Judge is 89 years of age.
He was admitted to the bar in 1845
and came to Janesville from Poughkeepsie, New York, in 1856. He was justice of the peace in 1878. Strong drink got the better of him in later years but he has found himself again and is again hale and hearty in the winter of his life. Mr. Wright was accompanied in his visit by Mrs. Pauline Clark, Miss Cora Anderson and Miss Paulson. Mrs. Clark and Miss Anderson sang for the inmates, Miss Paulson accompanying them on the piano.

Muskrat Grounds Rented.

In parts of the south the muskrat skin trade is so important that the marshes on which they have their burrows are rented out for the shooting. The sport is usually best at night when the animals are out in search of food. It sometimes occurs that an unusually high tide drives them from their homes, when they are slaughtered in thousands. The fur hunters only kill them in the winter and early spring, when their coats are thick and in prime condition. The fish is not so good in winter as in warmer weather, as they get thin during the cold weather.

LIFE NECESSITIES
HIGH AT GOLDFIELD

Rudolph Boys Find Housekeeping a Large Problem—A. K. Wheeler
Has Gone to Wonder.

Otto and Alfred Rudolph, sons of Ex-Alderman Paul Rudolph, who are looking after their father's interests in the mining camp at Goldfield, Nevada, have secured a small cabin and are doing their own housework. Flour, worth a dollar a sack here commands $2 there, oil worth 12 cents a gallon here is retailed for 65 cents in Goldfield, and an oil-stove which could be purchased for $2 in the middle west costs them $12. The town is filled with speculators, gamblers, and adventurers of both sexes. They write that before arriving at Goldfield they were entertained by Walter S. Fifield, who is located in Reno, eighty miles away. A. K. Wheeler, formerly of Janesville, who is reported to have prospered at Goldfield, has departed for the new mining camp at Wonder,
where he has acquired large interests.

JOSEPH R. COGHAN

Rear Admiral Joseph Bullock Cogan is a native of Kentucky, and was appointed to the Naval Academy in 1860. He became an ensign in 1863 and saw a year's service during the Civil war engagements. In 1882 Admiral Cogan was made a commander and rose to the rank of captain in 1890. He commanded on board the cruiser Raleigh at the battle of Manila Bay, and rendered valiant service,
according to the report of Admiral Dewey, who commanded during the engagement between the American and Spanish fleets. In 1902 he attained the grade of rear admiral.

BIGAMY CHARGE IS YET TO BE SETTLED

Former Resident Near Lake Koshkonong is in Serious Legal Difficulties.

Charles Sager, son of a prosperous Norwegian farmer near Lake Kosh-konong, was taken to Baraboo on Saturday from Madison to answer to the charge of bigamy. Sager was just released from the Dane county jail where he has served a six months' sentence. The Wisconsin State Journal has the following to say relative to the case:
"I know I will get free," said Sager,
"I am going to tell the jury all the truth about this matter. You see I married Bessie Knudson on Nov. 6, 1901. We lived happy and then I met Margaret Mulholland. She became well acquainted with me and wanted me to marry her. She said she would kill herself if I did not. She was going to jump in the lake. I thought if she killed herself I would be tried for murder because she might leave a letter saying I would not marry her."
"I told my wife all about it. I was afraid she would kill herself soon, so I wanted my wife to know all about it. I asked my wife if I had better marry this girl for fear she would kill herself. My wife didn't want me to, but after she thought I might be tried for the murder of the girl, she said she would get a divorce and for me to marry her."
Second Wife, Knew All.
"I went and married Margaret. She knew all the time I had a wife living.
I can prove it. I changed my name to Stewart, but that was more because I got my name mixed with some other man named Sager. My first wife has written me that she will come to tell all. She will tell how I told her about this woman. She said she would testify for me. My first wife and I agreed we would part. She was to get the divorce. Now she says she is to blame for the whole thing. If she had gone and got the divorce as she should I would not be in trouble today. She said she would, if she had earned the money, but she didn't get it."

"I couldn't go to get it because when I would have told the court about it there would have been trouble. Since I have been in jail my first wife has obtained a divorce. I wish she would have done it before. My mother promised to help me. My mother has written she will give $500 if I can be cleared of the charge. Father is mad.
He thinks that is what a man gets for fooling with women."

Nov. 6, 1901, Charles Sager married
Miss Bessie Knudson of Black River Falls at Madison. She is now twenty-six years old, tall and slender and apparently well educated. The three children are living at the home of her father, Knud Knudson, Black River Falls.

Assumed Another Name.
Under the name of Charles William Stewart, Sager married pretty Margaret Mulholland of Valton, Sauk county, May 24, 1906. Miss Mulholland said that she had kept company with him for more than two years before she married him, and that their four months of wedded life had been happy.

Shortly after Sager's marriage with Miss Mulholland the first wife came and took rooms with them, although wife No. 2 claims she never revealed her identity until the trouble in court.

Sager Loves Both.
Sager is hopeful the court will give him freedom to start life anew. He said if he had both women before him and had to choose one, he could not tell which one he would select.

"I love them both," he said and a look of love and confusion swept over his face. The first three days Sager was in jail at Madison, both wives visited him daily. He kissed them when they came and when they left.

GOT THE WRONG BABIES.
Curious Mixup That Occurred Recently in French Hospital.

A curious mistake occurred yesterday at the hospital at Amiens, says a correspondent of the London Mail.
Two young women had recently been attended there. One had given birth to a boy, and the other had given birth to a girl. Yesterday their babies were taken from them to be vaccinated.
After the vaccination the babies, in their swaddling clothes, were returned to their mothers, who went away with them. Soon afterward one of the mothers returned to the hospital in tears. Her child was a boy, but on returning home she discovered that the nurse had handed her a girl. She insisted on her boy being returned to her. A scene of great confusion occurred, as nobody knew the address of the other mother. At last, toward nightfall, the other mother arrived, greatly excited, complaining that she had been given a boy in mistake for her girl baby. The change was duly executed, and the two mothers went away happy.

Future Looked Dismal.
Nelson, a child of five, was becoming acquainted with his Uncle Will.
They were considering questions of earthly life, with its manifold perplexities and rules of conduct, and the life and hope in the hereafter. In an attempt to make the idea perfectly clear to the boy, the uncle said: "Now, you know that your grandmother is dead and has gone to Heaven." After a minute or two of deep thought Nelson looked up into his uncle's face and said: "Well, never see her again, will we, Uncle Will?"

Good at Figures.
A lawyer in a seaport town advertised for an office boy. A lad applied for the situation who had hitherto been employed in the local fish market. The boy, on being asked if he was a good writer, answered in the affirmative. "And can you do mental arithmetic?" "I think so, sir."
"Well, what would 36 pounds of salmon at one-half cent a pound be?"
"Bad, sir," was the quick reply.

Sixteen-Year-Old May Dickens Denied
Her Mother When Latter Confronted Her at Waukesha.

May Dickens, or more properly May Frye, denied her mother when the latter confronted her Friday afternoon in the jail at Waukesha, where the sixteen-year-old Janesville girl was confined after her arrest at Dousman under the name of Mrs. May Baker on the charge of stealing over $50 worth of wearing apparel, belonging to Mrs.
McGovern of the McGovern hotel and a domestic. "I never saw that woman before in my life—she is not my mother," is the exclamation credited to the erring young woman as Mrs.
Susan A. Dickens faced her in the corridor. The latter, however, has no difficulty in convincing the officers that the denial was only a part of the same brazen impudence that prompted the girl to run away with two dresses and a suit-case belonging to her. She is a daughter of Mrs. Dickens by her first husband, whose name was Frye. After the latter was wedded at Madison three years ago, to George B. Dickens, night watchman at the Janesville Machine Co.'s plant, and up to the time of the divorce granted
Mrs. Dickens on April 23, the girl took her foster-father's name. She was ambitious to go on the stage, but her first attempt on an amateur night at the West Side last winter met with a discouraging reception. At Oconomoc Saturday Judge Agnew committed her to the Industrial School for Girls at Milwaukee until she should become eighteen years of age.

THE SALOON QUESTION

"We may be pardoned for doubting whether the saloon question is to be settled offhand by following the suggestions of the reformers who addressed the Liquor Dealers' association the other night. The selling of liquor to minors and the entertainment of women in saloons are merely phases of the question."

"Of one thing we may be certain—that the saloon, like most other things, takes its character largely from its environment. The 'tough' saloon does not flourish in good neighborhoods and the high-class saloon is not found in 'tough' neighborhoods. The saloon exists in response to a demand. The process of selection and survival of the fittest goes on here as elsewhere. Like seeks like."

"There are as many grades of saloons as there are grades of men. The 'levee dive' caters to its peculiar clientele and its patrons would not feel comfortable in the establishments which are patronized by a higher grade of people. In short, the saloon reflects its surroundings. It might be called a product of social evolution."

"It is, therefore, obviously out of the question to take the saloons in a lump and treat them all alike. There is as much individuality among saloons as there is among the men who patronize them. They must, consequently, be treated as individual men are treated."

"The disreputable dive, the thieves' fence, the resort for criminals, must be regarded as a dangerous man. would be regarded. The decently conducted and so-called respectable saloon ought to receive the consideration that is extended to the law-abiding citizen. There is a great gulf between the two."

"Of course, there are people—a good many of them—who maintain that there should be no saloons at all. They present some strong considerations in support of their contention, but all those considerations are beside the immediate question. Under existing laws the saloon is a legitimate enterprise, licensed and entitled to the same protection as any other legitimate enterprise."

"So long as that is true it is useless to discuss the ethics of liquor selling. The only thing we have to consider is whether the saloon-keeper complies with the police regulations which organized society prescribes for his guidance. When he does so his legal position is impregnable. When he fails to do so society can exercise its power and put him out of business altogether."

"That is the beginning and end of the saloon question—each saloon is to be judged by itself."—Chicago Chronicle.

The Chronicle takes a sensible view of this much-discussed question, while it may not be popular with radical temperance reformers who maintain that the saloon has no right to exist. It is true that there are many evils in the realm of morals, which should not exist, but public sentiment alone is responsible, and this is the only court that can successfully prohibit this class of evils."

When the saloon is licensed by a city in compliance with state law, it has the same legal rights as any other class of business, and so long as its contract is kept inviolate, there is no cause for legal complaint."

Many people believe that the Anti-

Saloon league is engaged in a crusade against saloons. This belief is due to the name of the organization, which is misleading. It should have been named the Law and Order league.

The fact is generally recognized that drink is responsible, to a large extent, for crime and misdemeanor, and so the league comes to the aid of towns and villages and crystallizes public sentiment on the question of local option, and "no license" results.

But in the cities efforts are confined to the simple enforcement of law, and this proposition is so fair, that it commands the support of law-abiding citizens. The fact is conceded that the saloon has not only a legal right to exist, but is also entitled to protection, and so the Carrie Nations are not permitted to conduct hatchet campaigns.

No saloon man should be granted a license who is not willing to comply with its requirements, and when he willfully violates his contract, he has no cause for complaint if the license is taken away, as the law provides.

There are other things beside the saloon that need regulating, and these will doubtless receive attention when public sentiment becomes sufficiently aroused to take hold of them.

THE RAILROAD SITUATION

Henry Clews, the New York banker, has this to say of the railway situation:

"Our railways are still heavily taxed with freight; traffic managers all over the interior being hopeful in their views regarding business. Their chief problem is that of properly handling the traffic which presses upon them. In the month of March 71 roads reported gross earnings of 8 per cent ahead of the enormous traffic of last year. The companies are therefore still under the urgent necessity of providing better facilities."

"In providing the latter they are seriously handicapped by two considerations:—First, the great increase in expenses; and second, the difficulty of securing capital except at high rates of interest." In the matter of expenses on the above reports it is noted that they increased 18 per cent over last year, causing a decrease of over 2 per cent in profits. This tendency towards diminished profits is today characteristic of our business enterprises.

"It is not confined to railroads alone, but is rapidly entering into industrial and mercantile operations, owing, as stated, to the high cost of commodities and labor. The railroads are really facing a serious problem—that of providing increased facilities when profits are diminishing and rates of interest advancing."

"Under ordinary circumstances they would recoup themselves by an advance in freight rates, but the present state of public opinion renders such a policy wholly inadvisable. In consequence, the roads must postpone contemplated improvements, as far as practicable, and confine them to those which are absolutely necessary."

Mark Twain's book on Christian Science is well worth reading. He predicts that the new cult will have a following 100 years from now second only to the Roman church, and argues that four-fifths of the ills of humanity are due to a diseased mind, which Christian Science reaches and cures. The book sparkles with wit and drollery, at which scientists will doubtless take offense, but it is the best advertisement the church ever had.

The San Francisco labor riot is subsiding and the street car service is gradually being resumed. The law and order element is making strenuous efforts to enforce the law, and when the strike is finally settled, the city will be on a better basis.

The chances are that Wisconsin will have another senator before the close of the week, but who the lucky man will be is still an unsolved problem. A dark steed is likely to capture the prize, unless the three leading contestants can agree on a compromise."

Milwaukee is among the possibilities for the next republican national convention. The city has ample accommodations, and every effort should be made to secure the conclave. Kansas City and St. Louis are in competition.

The three free employment agencies of Chicago furnished work, last year, for more than 40,000 applicants. The agencies are doing philanthropic work, and are entitled to every encouragement.

The wreck of the Shriners' train near Santa Barbara, California, adds another tragedy to the long list of railway horrors.

A family of triplets, in this country, causes less commotion than the one royal baby in Spain, which managed to keep the entire population awake all night.

The Taft sentiment is growing in Wisconsin. He is the right man to succeed Roosevelt, and will make a good showing in the national convention.

The newspapers that are still publishing the railway time tables are doing so as a matter of courtesy to their readers.

Stead is still managing a little peace congress of his own, but it promises to be harmless, so far as the Hague conference is concerned.

PRESS COMMENT.

Isn't It Terrible?

Rockford Register-Gazette: Probably Ellen Terry herself doesn't know whether her marriage to a man twenty-four years her junior is comedy or tragedy.

Luxury of Early Season.
Marquette Eagle-Star: A Michigan

man has paid $102 for hitting a baseball umpire. It seems high, but then it's a backward season.

Truckling That is Stupid.
Exchange: England will pay an ordinary compliment to the intelligence of her eastern ally if the ban on "The Mikado" is removed.

His Business Considered.
Menasha Record: It is said that a Green Bay undertaker has saved four people from drowning. If that man does not deserve a hero medal who does?

Her Third Term.
New York Commercial: Ellen Terry has married Mr. Casew, her leading man. He is twenty-seven years her junior and it is her third term in the bonds. He must be a good actor.

Remarkable Conjunction of Ideas.
Madison Journal: An eastern scientist this week informs the world that the sun is getting hotter as it grows older. That is just the way with Uncle Isaac, only he isn't nearly as old as the sun.

Beyond the Ken of Prophecy.
Milwaukee Journal: What Half-Breed would have predicted, when La Follette was made senator, that the next contest would develop five Half-Breed candidates and threaten the disruption of the machine?

He Made the World Better.
New York Commercial: The unexpected death of Dr. John Watson (an Maclaren) will be regretted by every American. His stories were lovable, like the man, and made the world a little better by invoking its tenderest sympathies.

A Sure Long Time 'Tween Drinks.
Appleton Crescent: The governors of N. C. and S. C. met at Jamestown, and as they are both prohibitionists, nothing happened. Ever since Kentucky caught the prohibition fever, things like this have been happening all around.

Not a Reliable Precedent.
Oshkosh Northwestern: A New York woman was awarded six cents damages for being kissed by a dentist who was fixing her teeth. At the same time this should not be interpreted as a license for other dentists to try the same plan.

Definitions Difficult.
Madison State: While the Milwaukee Free Press is inquiring daily "What is a Democrat?" and while the democrats are replying by asking "What is a Republican?" there are some senators at candidates wrestling with a far more perplexing question to them: "What is a Half-Breed?"

Ever Closer and Closer.
El Paso Herald: Seventeen steamships crossing the sea have wireless telegraph instruments in perfect working order and powerful enough to keep the passengers in communication with the shore all the way over. Every year it grows more and more difficult to get away from people.

Cost of Seat on Supreme Bench.
Fond du Lac Commonwealth: That it costs good round sums of money to run for a judicial office these days, is indicated by the statement recently filed by Justice Marshall of the supreme court. The amount expended by the judge, under the direction of his campaign committee, aggregated $4,089.

Will Practice, Instead.
Evening Wisconsin: The race at Madison between the boat crews of the universities of Wisconsin and Syracuse will be rowed on Friday, the 31st inst. Instead of Memorial day, as had been planned. This will give the boys one more day for practice, and also contribute toward the establishment of an era of good feeling in regard to university athletics generally and intercollegiate contests in particular.

Literary Note.
"Railroad Accidents" is the title of a careful study in the May Atlantic. It is interesting, by the way, to notice that this "literary" magazine is publishing such timely and popular matter. The writer shows by statistics that while legislation has to a large extent eliminated many of the causes of accidents, yet casualties due to collisions and derailments have increased during the last six months. High speed of trains, inexperience and overwork of employees, and negligence seem to be back of the trouble, yet "the fundamental weakness of American railroading from the standpoint of safety is the widespread and almost universal lack of discipline." It is a relief to our fluttering nerves to find a satisfactory first cause of such a widespread trouble, and a plausible remedy. Professor Dixon, the writer, concludes, "What the country needs is a federal board of inspection of long, if not of permanent tenure, consisting of men of such wide knowledge and of such undoubted integrity that their conclusions will be accepted without question, and their recommendations adopted by the railroads as a matter of course."

Is Out of Danger: While at play a week ago today Lucia Denison, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. R. C. Denison, was stuck with a hatpin in her playmate's hat, the sharp point entering the eyelid and narrowly missing the ball. She did not mention the injury until Wednesday, when the wound became inflamed and the flesh swollen. The danger of an abscess is now past.

LITTLE TRANSACTION IN BEER EXPENSIVE
Martin J. Hessian Paid $25 and Costs for Passing Small Package Out Back Door.
Late yesterday afternoon City Marshal W. H. Appleby espied two men partaking of a bottle of beer in the alley back of Martin J. Hessian's saloon at 114 West Milwaukee street. Accosting them he snarled inquired as to the source of supply.

"Got it in Beloit Saturday night," replied one of the pair more or less shyly.
"When did you come up?"
"About eleven this morning."
"Where has the beer been all this time?"
"Hid here in the alley."
"Rather odd," mused the marshal, "those beads of sweat on the bottle make it appear that the stuff has just come from a refrigerator—I guess you better come with me to the lock-up."

At the door of the bastille one of the pair, terror-stricken at the prospect, confessed that he had juggled the truth and said that the beer had been handed out the back door of Martin Hessian's place.
In municipal court this morning Mr. Hessian told Judge Fifield that one of the young men had returned a loan of $3 and that he had let him have the beer as a matter of accommodation, expecting that he would take it home. Pleading guilty to violation of the Sunday closing ordinance he paid a fine of $25, and costs amounting to $2.60.

MUCH BUILDING IN PROSPECT FOR CITY
Three Contracts Let—$12,000 Flat Building in Prospect—Re-modeling Work.
Three building contracts have been let by Architect W. H. Blair within the past few days. Martin Garvin will build two cottages for James O'Rourke at the corner of Western avenue and Chestnut street. Both will be erected from one general plan, the difference in the two being very small. Kelly & Mason have received the contract for building J. J. Nicholson's cottage on Racine street. This is to be made of local brick.
Kennedy to Invest $12,000.
John E. Kennedy, the real estate man, will erect a $12,000 double flat building at the corner of Pleasant and South Academy streets. The building being 11x34 feet will nearly cover the lot, leaving only a four-foot grass plot between the walks and the walls. The structure will be two stories high, with high basement, containing eight separate flats of six rooms and bath. In the two basements will be steam heating plants and laundries, one for each set of four flats. The foundation will be of stone and the walls of solid brick. Hilton & Sadler are drawing the plans.
Large Double House.
George McKee has purchased the Voshung property on Prospect avenue across the street from the G. M. & S. freight depot, and will remodel the building into a double house, with up-to-date improvements.

Knights of the Golden Eagle.
Harrisburg, Pa., May 13.—Harrisburg is filled with visitors from many parts of the state, come to attend the big meeting of the Pennsylvania grand castle of the Knights of the Golden Eagle, which will hold forth here during the entire week. Many of the delegates are accompanied by their wives and families and ample entertainment has been provided for them. The spectacular event of the week will be the big parade, to take place tomorrow afternoon.

James Van Hurt: At his home on Mineral Point avenue one night last week Mayor Stewart B. Heddesley received a telephone message from his leaf warehouse to the effect that a freight car had passed over the head of James Van, one of his employees. He hastened to the scene and was relieved to find upon his arrival that reports had been greatly exaggerated. Mr. Van had been struck by a car door and had sustained a deep scalp wound which required the services of a surgeon.

Solemn Smell.
The church was beautifully decorated with sweet flowers and the air was heavy with their fragrance. As the service was about to begin small Kitty pulled her mother's sleeve and whispered, "Mamma, doesn't it smell solemn?"

THE RICKSHAW AND DANDY.
Primitive Modes of Travel in Hill Country, India.

In the mountain districts of India the principal vehicles of passenger conveyance are the rickshaw and the "dandy," with which Rudyard Kipling has made us familiar. United States Consul Gen. Michael, of Calcutta, writes thus about these vehicles: "The rickshaw is pushed and pulled through the streets and on the roads leading out into the country by four coolies, and the 'dandy' is carried on the shoulders of four and sometimes six coolies. Saddle ponies are also used to some extent but most of the inhabitants and quite all visitors used the rickshaw and 'dandy.' The latter is constructed on the plan of a sleigh box, but longer. A pole is attached fore and aft, which is long enough to give a springy motion when the coolies are walking and trotting. A cross-piece rests on the shoulders of the coolies and is shifted now and then from one shoulder to the other for rest. By the command of the coolie in charge this shift is made simultaneously. As a rule, both the rickshaws and the 'dandies' are heavier than they need to be, and they are generally lacking in finish. Yet these vehicles cost as much as light and strong ones well finished should cost. The writer would like to place alongside of the 'rickshaws and 'dandies' in use in India some samples manufactured in the United States after designs made by an American designer. The samples would attract orders."

TREE FRUIT CROPS DEAD IN SOUTH WEST

BUSH FRUITS, STRAWBERRIES AND GRAPES INJURED.

RESULT OF LATE FROSTS

Conditions in Michigan and Indiana Are Not So Bad As Had Been Feared.

Kansas City, May 13.—Reports from all parts of Kansas, western Missouri, Oklahoma and Indian Territory indicate almost complete destruction by frost of tree fruit crops, and serious injury to bush fruits, grapes and strawberries.

Tender garden plants throughout the southwest were destroyed, but this causes small direct loss and the growers have already replanted. The replanted fields will not be yielding produce until summer, however, and the Gulf states will send vegetables and small fruits north for several weeks longer than in usual seasons. At the beginning of May there was hope that late blooming apples would escape, but the killing freeze of May 3, when the temperature fell to 27 degrees, with snow crust on the trees, completed the havoc.

Michigan Fruit Not Killed.
Detroit, May 13.—Although the unusual cold which has prevailed in Michigan thus far this spring has put fruit and vegetables a month behind their normal condition at this time, reports agree that the fruit crop will be far from a total failure. Opinions differ as to the amount of actual damage caused by the unusual cold. The most pessimistic prediction is made in the state crop report for April, issued last week. It says that fruit correspondents throughout the state generally complain of trees being damaged by the freeze of last October, followed by the severe frosts and cold of April, which came after a mild period late in March which softened the buds somewhat. The report says that these frosts, coupled with the damage done by San Jose scale and other pests, make the prospects for the fruit crop rather discouraging.

On the other hand, inquiry among the fruit growers and commission men about Grand Rapids, which is in the center of the Michigan fruit belt, indicates that they look for an average crop of peaches, pears, plums and apples, with a generous crop of berries. It is the opinion there that the state's vegetable crop will be very late, as comparatively few farmers have been able to plant as yet.

Not So Bad in Indiana.
Indianapolis, Ind., May 13.—Reports received from every county in the state show that there was undue alarm for the fruit, grain and vegetable crops in Indiana on account of unseasonable April weather. With the warm weather now arrived more careful estimates can be made. The fruit crop has been seriously damaged, but has not been all killed. New buds have appeared on the trees, bushes and vines and there will be a fair crop of Indiana strawberries, blackberries, raspberries, peaches, pears, plums and cherries.

Illinois State Senator Dies.
Dixon, Ill., May 13.—State Senator Charles H. Hughes died Sunday afternoon at Excelsior Springs, Mo. He was thrown from his horse two weeks ago, and sustained the injury which caused his death. Mr. Hughes was just entering on his third term as state senator. He was a Mason and an Elk. He was cashier of the Dixon National bank.

BEHIND BARS ON HIS WEDDING DAY

BUT ALLEGED INTERURBAN CAR DISTURBER WAS RELEASED IN TIME.

BRIDE-TO-BE AT LOCK-UP

Said That Arthur Prichard Was and Always Had Been a Good Boy—
George Miller Held Under $800 Bail Bonds.

George Miller of Janesville, one of the pair of boys apprehended by the officers on Saturday, was brought into municipal court this morning to answer to a charge of shooting at and into an interurban car. The complaint was filed by District Attorney John L. Fisher and the crime charged is a state's prison offense. The youth is sixteen years of age and is said to have been employed for a time at the A. A. Russell livery establishment in company with a companion from Richmond Center, named Arthur Prichard. Miller visited a Beloit saloon and drank more than was good for him. Prichard avers that he knew nothing about Miller's intentions when the latter suddenly pulled out the gun and shot towards the floor of the car. Miller claims it was a blank cartridge, but the conductor on the car says that the charge hit the water pipe and left a mark there. It is further alleged that after both boys had been put off at the power station, Miller fired four or five more shots at the wheels and sides of the car. His preliminary examination was set for Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock and his bail fixed at $800. The boy's talk about suicide is not taken very seriously.

A rather grotesque element of heart interest was added to the episode when three ladies appeared at the city lock-up this morning and asked to see Arthur Prichard, the Richmond Center lad, who had been kept in custody over Sunday, even though he was not known to have had anything directly to do with the "warlike demonstration." One of them was Miss Armstrong, a daughter of the late Levi Armstrong who met his death on the railroad tracks some time ago, and she stated to the officers that she was betrothed to Mr. Prichard and that this was the day set for the tying of the nuptial knot. Prichard is 23 years old.

Officer Champion, who conducted the party to the cell, suggested that the service be performed in the jail and assured the young lady that the police would see to it that she received a nice present, etc. "Never!" replied the young lady. She further stated that while she was sorry that Arthur had gotten himself into trouble, she did not think he had done anything wrong. Prichard was released soon after the party departed from the city hall in high spirits. The marriage will probably take place at Rockford sometime this afternoon.

The announcement occasioned general rejoicing.

Rev. Christy departs tomorrow for Oshkosh, where he will spend the balance of the week assisting in the work of establishing a church there. The position which he declined carried with it a salary of $1,600 together with the use of a fine home facing the seminary.

BUY FLOUR

Look where wheat has gone. The wholesale flour market has advanced 20¢ a sack during the last six or eight weeks.

We have a good stock on hand and will sell at the old prices for a short time.

We advise all our customers to anticipate their needs, for there is no telling what we will have to pay when we buy again.

EACO at $1.35 is practically at wholesale price. It is a triple patent, heart of the wheat kind of flour. It is absolutely pure and clean and makes the sweetest white bread of anything on the market.

SUNBURST at $1.15 is our regular $1.25 flour, and at the special price we name is less than we could buy a carload for. It is a strictly high-grade fancy Minnesota patent, made from selected washed and tested wheat and is superior to anything we ever sold, outside of EACO.

It's a new brand and a fine one; we want you to become familiar with it, that's why we are offering it at this price. One sack or a hundred at $1.15.

REV. R. C. DENISON PREACHED IN OMAHA

Call Has Not Been Extended but May Be—Janesville Parishioners Apprehensive.

Rev. R. C. Denison occupied the pulpit of the Congregational church at Omaha, Neb., both morning and evening yesterday. He had received several requests to become a candidate for the pastorate by the committee of that church, but had always declined having his name so used. In justice to himself and his work he went there to become familiar with the situation and the visit will probably determine his future course. It is possible that he will consent to have the question of a call submitted to the congregation.

COUNCIL TO MEET AT EIGHT O'CLOCK

This Evening and at All Subsequent Sessions Until After Sept. 30—Street Matters Tonight.

Mayor Stewart B. Heddles will call the city council to order at eight o'clock this evening instead of 7:30 and this time schedule will be in force until after Sept. 30. Property-owners will be heard with regard to the amending of N. Academy street from Bluff to Ravine and the laying of curbing on Terrace street from Ravine to Mineral Point avenue and on Ravine street from Washington to Chatham street. A report with regard to the grading work in Forest Park is also expected from the committee to whom the matter was referred. The regular monthly reports will be submitted.

SHRINERS IN WRECK THIRTY-ONE KILLED

SPECIAL TRAIN IS DITCHED BY A DEFECTIVE SWITCH.

EIGHT WOMEN ARE DEAD

More Than a Score of Persons Injured—Victims Are Horribly Scalded and Burned.

Santa Barbara, Cal., May 13.—While hurrying northward over the coast line of the Southern Pacific railroad Saturday afternoon, homeward bound after a week of fraternalizing and fiesta in Los Angeles, 145 Shriners of Is-malla temple, of Buffalo, and Rajah temple, of Reading, with their fam-ilies and friends, were hurled into the midst of death.

Their special train, running 50 miles an hour, struck a defective switch at Honda, a lonely station on the sand wastes of the Pacific beach, derailing the train, smashing the coaches into flinders, killing 31 almost instantly and injuring more than a score of others. The bodies of 21 lie in the morgues of Santa Barbara and ten more are at San Luis Obispo. The injured, many of whom are terribly hurt and will probably die, are in two sanitariums at San Luis Obispo.

Names of Those Killed.
Following are the names of the dead:

J. Douglas Hipple, Reading, Pa.; H. K. Gittleman, Reading, Pa.; A. L. Roth, Reading, Pa.; Gilbert Steffe, Reading, Pa.; W. D. Wasson, Buffalo, N. Y.; J. W. Cutter, Binghamton, N. Y.; Charles M. Lowing, Pullman con-ductor, Buffalo, N. Y.; C. W. Austin, New York agent for McCann's Tour-ist company, New York; John Lacey, negro dining-car waiter; R. W. Sweeney, negro dining-car waiter; Mrs. William W. Essick, Reading, Pa.; Mrs. John W. Cutter, Binghamton, N. Y.; Mrs. Henry J. Fisher, Cleveland, O.; Miss Cora Young, Cleveland, O.; Mrs. Brumbach, Reading, Pa.; George N. Hagerman, Reading, Pa.; Benjamin Stoltz, Reading, Pa.; Harrison R. Hen-del, Reading, Pa.; Oliver F. Kaufman, Reading, Pa.; Harry G. Miller, Read-ing, Pa.; S. S. Snyder, Reading, Pa.; Mrs. S. Snyder, Reading, Pa.; Richard Essick, Reading, Pa.; Thomas J. Brumbach, Reading, Pa.; Miss Stoltz, Reading, Pa.; L. N. Ellenbogen, Al-lentown, Pa.; Mrs. L. N. Ellenbogen, Allentown, Pa.; Howard Meyer, Hazle-ton, Pa.; Alonzo B. Rogers, St. Paul, Minn.; Pullman conductor; unident-ified woman, probably Mrs. Mary C. Lyons, Reading, Pa.

Train was Running Fast.
The wreck occurred exactly at 2:35 o'clock, one hour and forty-five minutes after the convale visitors, forming a merry party, had spent all the morning sightseeing in Santa Barbara. The statement that the train was making a terrific speed when it struck the defective track is borne out by the fact that it covered the 61 miles of curves and crooked track between here and Honda in ex-actly 100 minutes.

There was no warning of the im-pending calamity. The special plunged upon the defective switch, and in an instant the big locomotive, baggage car, diner and Pullman were hurled together in a huge heap of wreckage. The engine shot forward on the broken track, tearing up the rails and ties and twisting the iron spans into fish hooks. The baggage car half buried itself in the sand on the right side of the locomotive.

Many Scalded and Burned.
The dining car, in which were 32 persons eating their noonday meal, leaped into the air and was thrown directly on top of the demolished locomotive. Nearly every person in this coach was instantly killed. Scores were scalded by steam escap-ing from disconnected pipes in the kitchen of the diner.

The terror and turmoil of the scene was indescribable. Many of those who escaped instant death by the first im-pact were crushed by the rear coaches hurled upon the wreckage. Others, plumed in the debris, were roasted alive. The wreckage caught fire from the coals of the engine, but was ex-tinguished in a few minutes by the passengers who escaped injury.

Engineer Frank Champlain was pitched with his cab 25 feet beyond the engine and got up and ran three-quarters of a mile, seeking help, be-fore he discovered that his arm was broken and that he was severely scalded. A man standing behind his wife in the baggage car was hurled through a huge rent in the roof and alighted in soft sand almost unin-jured. The woman was forced through the floors and wreckers had to lift tons of baggage to get her body out.

Deaths of Brave Men.
There were countless deeds of cour-age and heroic self-sacrifice. A. D. Hagerman, of Reading, Pa., refused the aid of his brother nobles after they had dragged him, fatally hurt, from the wreck.

"I am dying," he said, "go help the women."
Sander Deabald, of Cleveland, worked heroically but unavailingly to save the lives of two women plumed beneath the diner. The flames had broken out amid the wreckage and were burning all about the prostrate forms of women. Burrowing his way down into the smouldering, splintered wreck, Deabald, with a hose which he had wrenched from a coach connec-tion, spouted water from an adjacent tank and extinguished the flames. Then he reached down and, after cut-ting away the broken timbers that held her fast, took Mrs. William W. Essick, of Reading, from the ruins.

one was begging pitiously for rest when Deabald reached her. As he lifted her from the wreckage a stream of boiling water poured over her, sear-ing her body terribly. She expired a few minutes later and Deabald was forced back into the sleeper, unable to longer endure the harrowing sights.

Some Pitiful Incidents.
Henry J. Fischer, of Cleveland, O., went under protest with his wife and daughter, Miss Cora Young and Mrs. John W. Cutter, to the baggage car. The three women were killed and he escaped almost unharmed from the wreck of the car.

A. D. Wasson, of Buffalo, was eating at a corner table. He was within six inches of the hot water tanks. When the rescuers neared him he yelled en-couragingly. Dragged from under the range of the scalding steam, he mur-mured, "Thank God," and died.

His wife and three-year-old baby were with him on the train and es-caped injury.

Inquest Is Begun.

Coroner Ruiz began his inquest Sun-day afternoon on the bodies of the victims. Joel H. Prescott, of Buffalo, was the first witness. He testified that the train was running at a high rate of speed at the time of the ac-cident. In answer to question of the district attorney Prescott said that the relief train from Santa Barbara reached the wreck shortly after five o'clock. The accident occurred at 2:35. The relief train started back at seven o'clock and did not reach Santa Barbara until 1:30 a. m., or six and a half hours after leaving the wreck, taking that long to cover a distance of 61 miles. The relief train was held on a siding about 14 miles north of Santa Barbara for two hours with its freight of dead. Prescott said he ex-aminated the ground in the vicinity of the switch and discovered that a point of a switch rail was broken off, evidently by the train. This caused the train to leave the track. An ex-amination of the switch showed that it was not closed.

NINETY MINERS ARE KILLED.

Fire in Mexican Mine Causes Terrible Loss of Life.

Mexico City, May 13.—According to a special dispatch which was received from the city of Torreón, Coahuila, at a late hour Sunday, 90 lives were lost in a fire which occurred in the Cor-nethas shaft of the Terrena group of mines in the town of Velardena, state of Durango.

The fire started early Friday night in an abandoned shaft. At the time there was 107 men working in another part of the mine and but 17 of them escaped. Thirty-five bodies have been recovered.

Steps on Skirt and Is Killed.

Henderson, Ky., May 13.—Near Leeds, Ky., late Saturday night, Thomas Horn was killed by James Campbell and the murderer was ar-rested and brought here and placed in jail. The men were at a dance, and it is said, Horn stepped on the skirt of a girl who was with Campbell, and he was invited outside where he was hit over the head with a blackjack by Campbell and instantly killed.

Publisher's Wife a Suicide.

St. Louis, May 13.—Mrs. Agnes Bar-low Houser, wife of Daniel M. Houser, president of the Globe Printing com-pany, publishing the Globe Democrat, died Sunday night from the effect of a self-inflicted bullet wound in the right temple. She had been in a very nervous state for the past three or four months. Members of the family are at a loss to assign a reason for her act.

Five Negroes Blown to Pieces.

Ruston, La., May 13.—Unknown per-sons set off a charge of some high ex-plosive here under the house of Samuel Cook, a negro, early Sunday, blowing the house to pieces and killing Cook and four other negroes.

Russian Grand Duke Weds.

FORAKER TO ACCEPT CONVENTION RESULT

SENATOR REGARDS NO OTHER ACTION AS BINDING.

NOT MAKING ANY BARGAIN

Joint Meeting of the Ohio Committees at Columbus Wednesday Ex-cites the Liveliest Interest.

Washington, May 13.—Senator For-aker, of Ohio, Sunday night issued a statement on the Ohio situation in re-ply to Representative Burton, saying that so far as he (Mr. Foraker) was concerned, no effort whatever has been made to make a deal, bargain or a compromise with anybody about any-thing; that the statement issued by George B. Cox, of Cincinnati, was not, in Mr. Foraker's interest or with his approval, but he thought Mr. Cox was striving for party harmony and he (Mr. Foraker) was willing to accept the results if the convention should act favorably on Mr. Cox's recom-mendations.

The senator says all questions of endorsement and nomination should be deferred until the next state conven-tion, and he will not regard as bind-ing any action taken meanwhile by any individual or committee not au-thorized to settle these questions for Ohio Republicans.

Joint Meeting Wednesday.

Cleveland, O., May 13.—No political gathering held in this state in many months has excited so much interest as that of the joint meeting of the Re-publican state central and state execu-tive committees to be held at Colum-bus on Wednesday of this week.

Senator Charles Dick, of Akron, chairman of the state central com-mittee, and Walter F. Brown, of To-le-do, chairman of the state executive committee, have sent invitations to the Ohio Republican members of con-gress and many other Republican leaders in the state, asking them to attend a conference, and to give their views on the best means of main-taining harmony in the party and re-conciling clashing political interests.

The friends of Secretary of War Taft, led by Arthur I. Vorys, of Col-umbus, and Congressman Theodore E. Burton, of Cleveland, according to au-thorized statements of those in the confidence of the Taft organization, will insist on an unqualified endorse-ment by the committee of the secre-tary as Ohio's choice for the presiden-cy, and will stubbornly oppose the linking of that endorsement with the prospective contests for either United States senator or governor.

Dick Makes a Denial.

The report that Senator Dick would father a resolution coupling together endorsements of Senator Foraker and Gov. Harris, both for reelection, was denied by Senator Dick Sunday. He said: "I have not contemplated intro-ducing such a resolution, and do not expect to do so."

Senator Dick declined to further dis-cuss political affairs in advance of the Columbus conference. He will attend the committee meeting and he and John R. Malloy, of Columbus, will be among those who will look after Sen-ator Foraker's interests, but along just what lines they are not ready to disclose.

STRIKERS LET CARS ALONE.

Partial Service Is Given San Fran-cisco on Sunday.

San Francisco, May 13.—Fifty street cars were operated Sunday from ten o'clock in the morning until five o'clock in the evening over two of the twenty odd lines, composing the United Railroads system. For the first time since the commencement of the strike last Sunday cars were run to the ferries. About 20,000 passengers, a majority of them women, patronized the service.

There was very little disorder dur-ing the day. Thousands of persons evidently regarded the published in-junctions and private warnings and remained indoors. For the Sunday crowds were much smaller than usual. Five hundred police guarded the streets through which the 50 cars were run, but they had little to do.

Inspecting Kansas Wheat.

Hutchinson, Kan., May 13.—The special train of Omaha grain dealers passed through here over the Rock Island west-bound at noon Sunday. The train went as far as Bucklin and returned, passing through Hutchin-son east-bound at 7:40 at night. It stopped at various points on the route to permit personal inspection of the wheat fields.

Hundreds See Two Drown.

La. Crosse, Wis., May 13.—While 200 people watched them from the shore Sunday, V. Vancamp, E. O. Ellisworth and Rosa Wright attempted to cross the Mississippi river in a small rowboat. The waves overturned the craft, and Van Camp and the girl were drowned, but Ellisworth managed to cling to the overturned skiff until rescued.

Another Fire in Perry, Ia.

Des Moines, Ia., May 13.—The third disastrous fire within the past six months visited the town of Perry Sun-day, causing damage estimated at $25,000 and destroying four business buildings.

Carlisle Club in Madrid Mobbed.

Madrid, May 13.—A mob of republi-cans Sunday wrecked the Carlisle club and the office of the Carlisle news-paper at Victoria. There was lively street fighting.

Edwin A. Abbey
Mr. Edwin Austin Abbey, the famous artist, was born in Philadelphia on April 1, 1852, and received his early training at the Philadelphia Acad-emy of Fine Arts. He made an early success in illustrating and was sent by the Harpers to England as their special artistic representative abroad in 1875. He married Miss Mary Gertrude Mead in 1890, and they now have a beautiful home in Gloucestershire, England. Mr. Abbey was commis-sioned to plant the coronation scene of King Edward VII. by that monarch himself, and is warmly admired by the English King. He has painted many celebrated portraits and scenes of battle.

GOT EVEN WITH CONSUL.

Stranded Irishman Induced Mob to Wreck Enemy's Home.

There is a rolling stone in New York who is short on moss but long on anecdote, having knocked about in half a dozen countries. He has been out of a job a good part of his life, but has never let that worry him, being an Irishman, with his full share of the light-heartedness of his race.

"Once," he tells, "I arrived dead broke at a city in Spain. I decided to call on the British consul. The latter overheard me speaking fluent Spanish in the ante-room to his sec-retary, and refused absolutely to be-lieve that I was anything but a Span-iard. So he wouldn't help me in any way. I left the consulate vowing vengeance.

"There was a strike on at the time against the local street-railroad com-pany. Gathering a crowd of the strikers about me, I made an im-passioned stump speech.

"Do you know who is the chief stockholder of the street-railway com-pany? I asked them. 'Do you know who is the chief cause of all your trou-bles?'

"Who?" inquired the crowd.

"The British consul," I answered, striking an attitude.

"They let out a howl, rushed pell mell down the street, and obligingly wrecked the British consulate for me.

"I was avenged.

"But I discreetly left town that same day."

GOT EVEN WITH NEIGHBORS.

Wealthy Man's Revenge Was Costly, But It Was Thorough.

A funny story is told of a certain wealthy tradesman who, on retiring from business, erected a mansion in an aristocratic neighborhood, and who with his family commenced to cul-tivate social relationship with their stylish neighbors.

Unfortunately for their ambitions, the high-toned people of the locality proved to have the usual prejudice against trade, and showed themselves so very exclusive that after a series of snubs the newcomers could endure it no longer, and determined to dis-pose of their residence and quit the neighborhood.

But the baffled tradesman did not propose to go without leaving some mark of his resentment, and a huge notice board erected at his gate sent a thrill of horror through the veins of all the blue-blooded residents in the neighborhood. It bore the words:

"This desirable residence to be let or sold. Suitable for a fever hospital or high-class laundry."

Ultimately, so the story runs, the place was sold at a sacrifice, the owner cheerfully foregoing a large por-tion of its value on condition that the house should be exclusively used as a lunatic asylum! It has been a bitter pill to the tradesman's former neighbors.

WOMAN AND THE CHECK.

She Thought It Was a Bill That Had to Be Paid.

A woman stepped up to the win-dow of the paying teller in a Denver bank and pushed a check through the grating. It was for four dollars.

"Put your name on the back, please," said the teller.

She did so.

"Is this your name?" he asked.

The woman sighed. "Yes," she re-plied, "that's my name. It calls for four dollars, doesn't it?"

"It does," said the teller.

While the man in the cage was looking the check over the woman fumbled in her hand bag and then placed a five-dollar bill before him.

"Take it out of this, please," she said. "It seems to me I'll never get through paying bills."

For a moment the teller was puz-zled. Then he realized that the wom-an didn't understand the check. "You don't have to pay me," he said; "I have to pay you four dollars."

He pushed back her five-dollar bill and gave her four dollars in silver.

The woman was very much sur-prised. "You have to pay me?" she said. "Why, I thought it was a bill and I had to pay it."

Well Equipped.

The morning after the wreck of the fast train running between New York and Chicago, an old farmer was standing on the bank of the river into which the train had plunged, intently watching the water.

A stranger approached, and natu-rally the conversation reverted to the wreck and the fortunate escape of all the passengers.

"It was the costliest train in the world," informed the stranger.

"Yes," grunted the other, still watching the stream.

"And also the best equipped," the newcomer continued.

"No doubt about it," assented the old farmer. "I've fished a dozen bot-tles out of the water already."—Harper's Weekly.

PHASES OF AMERICAN FORESTRY

A MONTANA FOREST SHOWING ALL STAGES OF TREE GROWTH

Until recently the United States practically ranked with China in forest affairs, for neither of these countries had taken steps to care for the forests as every other civilized nation has done. Meantime the progressive modern nations had forged far, to the front in this regard. Turkey, Greece, Spain, Portugal, had given attention to their forests, and Japan had developed a forest service and a national forest school. In Australia, Italy, Norway and Sweden forestry had become part of the national life, while Russia was drawing enormous revenues from government woodlands. Germany, the leader in the science of forestry, France, with its perfected system of forest practice, and Switzerland, offered practical examples for our emulation and imitation. Australia and New Zealand had made important advances, while in Canada, at the Cape of Good Hope, and in British India the English had shown us the way to solve many of our forest problems. The United States, as it surrounded by a Chinese wall, alone was at a standstill.

The great western forests are the first of the three chief natural resources of the public lands for which a policy at all commensurate with the new requirements has been framed and put in force. If we have been behind other civilized countries, and even some uncivilized countries, in this provision for the future, there is every reason to believe that we are now making up for lost time and that the United States is destined to become a leader among nations.

Partly because we are, as a people, characteristically less inclined to build homes of stone and brick, but are satisfied with houses of wood, no other country uses for building purposes by any means so much timber, man for man, as this country. Again, because we move so rapidly, and are so rich in initiative and the spirit of enterprise, we lead the world in the extent and growth of our railroad systems. Think of using, as we do, about 100,000,000 ties per annum for renewals alone. To produce these from a forest of lodge pole pine in Montana or Wyoming would take 20,000,000 acres of permanent forest; from a red pine forest in one of the lake states, 12,000,000 acres; from a chestnut forest in Maryland and Pennsylvania, from 10,000,000 to 13,000,000 acres; from a loblolly forest in Virginia and the Carolinas, 5,000,000 acres. Roughly, they cost $400,000,000 a year. Yet this single drain upon the forest—not to consider fuel, which, probably, takes, at least as much as construction—calls for two ties growing in the forest for every tie laid down in the track. Then take the timber for mines, for which, for example, a single coal mining company spends $1,000,000 a month. That is another enormous demand. These and other uses for wood, including pulpwood for paper, which takes about nine per cent. of all timber cut, have already been pushed so far that, no matter what is done, we are bound to have and keenly feel a national timber shortage—not a famine to the extent of painful want, but a sharp twinge of wood-hunger. This cannot be prevented, but it can be palliated. One of the first boons of forestry will be to help us as a people to keep going safely through this period of shortage, and, when it is past and new forest growth comes to maturity, to show us the way, in a fashion we shall then heed better than now, to a policy of ordinary business foresight.

Besides the timber, the 140,000,000 acres of national forest hold the water sources upon which every important irrigation project in the west is forced to rely for success. Ditches, no matter how well dug, cannot supply farm land with water unless they have reservoirs on which to draw. Artificial reservoirs, no matter how costly or well planned, cannot themselves store water unless the water is first fed to them by the forested mountains and slopes from which, either first or last, all usable water must come. Whether forests bring more rainfall we do not know nor need to know. What we are sure of is the control of the forest over the given rainfall. If the forest goes, the water goes with it, so far as use is concerned. Naked hills harbor no springs; they gather and then discharge upon the valleys only the worse than wasted floods which leave ruin.

But there is a third natural resource over which the national forest stands as custodian—the grazing range, or rather that part of it called the "summer range," without which, to round out the spring and winter ranges on the lowlands, the millions of sheep and cattle of the western country would starve, with unspeakable loss, in a single year. Only for a little over a single season has the grazing on the national forest ranges been restricted, under permit, to conserve for the live stock industry this indispensable summer pasturage. Stock do not have to be excluded except where it is necessary to give a stretch of young forest the chance to make a clean start. But overcrowding is checked, the different needs of sheep men and cattle men, of small owner and large owner, are carefully studied and supplied, and no consideration but the good growth of the forest outweighs the claim of the herds.

This new work of the government is part and parcel of the broad plans of the administration to conserve the great natural resources which still remain in the nation's keeping. It is one answer to the public lands question, which has been forced into prominence, and set off in a fresh light, by the great and rapid industrial growth of the country. When the president's plans for the public lands have been fully carried out, every acre of the public domain will be brought to its fullest value to the settler; the agricultural lands will be places for homes to be founded and families supported; the grazing ranges will continue increasingly to furnish forage for sheep and cattle; tracts now desert will have their fertility developed by the waters of irrigation; and the forests which safeguard all these interests while supplying wood on which within 50 years the whole region will be forced wholly to rely, will be produced and harvested, so that the desired development of the west may go on, unchecked, in safety, guaranteed against the losses which follow the industrial adventurer, and the speculative boom.

CABIN MADE OF ANCIENT BONES.

It is the World's Most Curious and Most Expensive Home.

"The queerest house in the world," said a zoologist, "is undoubtedly the famous bone-cabin in Wyoming, near the Medicine Bow river. This cabin's foundations are built of fossil bones. Bones of dinosaurs—jaws of the dipodomys, teeth of the brontosaurus, knuckles of the ichthyosaurus, vertebrae of the camarasaurus, chunks of the barosaurus, the cetosaurus, the ornitholestes, or bird-catching dinosaur—all entered into this wonderful cabin's foundations, making it the most curious and the most costly edifice, not excepting the Pennsylvania capitol, in America.

This hut was built by a Mexican sheep herder, who had happened by chance upon the grandest extinct animal bed in the world. This was a plot about 50 yards square, wherein lay in rich profusion the bones of all the animals of the reptilian age. The heaviest and the lightest, the largest and the smallest, the most tranquil and the most ferocious, lay side by side.

"The place was evidently once a river bar, and the dead bodies that floated down the stream were here arrested, to lie for hundreds of thousands of years, till a sheep herder came along, and, rooting among bones as big as boulders, set about the building of the world's queerest cabin."

JUST SNIFFED THE WHISKY.

New Yorker Claims Act Gives Him Pleasant Memories.

A man entered a downtown restaurant the other day and ordered a whisky, says the New York Times.

The waiter brought a bottle of it. The man uncorked it, raised it to his nose, and took a long sniff. Then he took another. Then he took a third—a long, contemplative sniff. Finally he wound up the performance with a fervent king-sniff, one that he seemed loth to end. But he did end it at last, with a sigh. Then he replaced the bottle on the table, and called the waiter.

"Take it away," he said. The waiter removed the bottle. "Well, upon my word," said some one at another table, "I certainly thought that old fellow liked that whisky from the way he sniffed at it, but there he is sending it back. I wonder what other kind the waiter will bring him instead."

But the waiter brought him no more whisky. The man ate his lunch in silence, smoked his cigar, paid his check, and went his way. "He swore off long ago," explained the waiter to a curious somebody at another table. "But he always takes six sniffs of whisky at every meal. Gages him pleasant memories," he says.

"Going to the Dogs."

The phrase, "going to the dogs," with which Father Bernard Vaughan has been making effective play in connection with pet-worship, has puzzled the explainers of metaphorical expressions rather needlessly. It has even been suggested that it is a profane perversion of "going to the gods," and an allusion has been detected to "canis," the dog throw, the worst throw with the dice among the ancient Romans. Shakespeare's "Throw physic to the dogs," and the Scriptural "Give not that which is holy unto the dogs," have been quoted in connection with the expression. But it seems a fairly obvious reference to the fate of the worn-out horse, condemned to be slaughtered. The old Greek curse, "Go to the crows!" may be compared, referring as it did to the Greek's horror of having his body left unburied as food for carrion birds.—London Chronicle.

Cremation on the Increase.

Cremation is increasing in Great Britain, the number of bodies cremated being 742 in 1906, against 604 in 1905. Consul Mahlin of Nottingham writes: "There are crematories at Leicester, Hull, Leeds, Ilford, Bradford and Sheffield, owned by the respective municipalities, besides several conducted by companies in other cities. The operation of cremation requires about an hour and a half; the ashes are perfectly white and weigh four pounds, and the cost is about $25. Cremation is now fully recognized by law in Great Britain, though strictly guarded."

Rival of Beeswax.

A substitute for beeswax has been discovered in the leaves of the rafia palm, a product of the island of Madagascar. The wax is extracted by the simple process of beating the dried leaves on a mat to small bits. The particles are then gathered and boiled. The resultant wax is kneaded into small cakes. Experiments are being made with the new substance to find out its commercial value—whether it may be used for bottling purposes, in the manufacture of phonographic cylinders, etc.

Justifiable.

The cat had eaten the canary. "I haven't any compunctions about it, either," she said, picking her teeth with her claws. "I couldn't eat the canary on the first floor or the graphophone on the third, but I could make a meal of the musician on the second floor, and I've done it."

With a satisfied grin on her face she curled up on the floor behind the gas range and went to sleep.—Chicago Tribune.

SHORT OF CATCHERS.

BRESNAHAN BEST AT PRESENT

He Has All the Essential Qualities Demanded by the Difficult Position. Kling, Criger, Kleinow and Other Reliable Men of Major Leagues.

If there is a dearth of major league baseball players of stellar rank in any one position at present, it seems to be behind the bat. It is true that there are a number of catchers who are of average ability, and it is also true that the really first class catchers are not to exceed half a score.

Types of the very best style are found in Bresnahan of New York, Criger of the Boston Americans and Kling and Sullivan of the two Chicago clubs, Doolin of Philadelphia, Bergen of Brooklyn, Bowerman of the New York Nationals and Kleinow of the New York Americans, rate close behind them. Of course the reader must understand that in making this rating, all the best points of the men are taken into consideration. For catching, batting, base running and general baseball ability combined Bresnahan is the best of all. His value to a team is not reckoned solely on his ability to catch, as he can fill in at almost all positions.

Bresnahan is a fine general on the field and so is his side partner, Bowerman. Were the latter possessed of the agility and the batting strength of his contemporary he would run him a merry race for supremacy. Kling, Criger and Sullivan are all baseball commanders. They are not catchers in the mere mechanical sense of the word, but they are ably fitted to guide the work of a team, and it is a dull person who will not note the difference in the play of the nine with which they happen to be engaged when they are on the field.

Major leagues generally and minor league clubs as well are looking on all sides to obtain competent catchers. There is no department of the sport at present in which young players who show aptitude for the position can forge to the front more quickly. One of the most successful managers in the United States made the remark three months ago that ten competent young catchers, who could prove their worth in the summer of 1907 could find ten engagements in the summer of 1908 at the maximum salaries paid in the major leagues and could hope for employment for five years to come if they could maintain their speed.

Three of the most prominent owners of baseball clubs in the western half of the United States asserted at the joint meetings of the major league, which were held in New York recently that they stood ready to give top price for the release of any young player who could show that he was the equal of Bresnahan or Kling or Sullivan or Criger or likely to be within two years. That gives an idea of the necessity which is felt on the part of the promoters of clubs to obtain good catchers.

Taylor Gets License.

The stewards of the National Steeplechase and Hunt association have at last consented to grant Robert M. Taylor of Baltimore a license as a "gentleman jockey." At a recent meeting they gave him the necessary permission to take part in the races reserved for amateur riders. Taylor, affectionately called Bobby by his Baltimore friends, has long been regarded as the best gentleman rider in the south. For several years he won many races at the Benning meeting and made the so called champion riders of the capital look like novices.

But evil days came upon Taylor. He was guilty of the crime of buying "plugs" for $100 and riding them to victory. By such actions he made his rivals astir, $2,000 horses look very cheap. This aroused the enmity of the riders who say they are in the sport for the pure love of it, and Taylor last season was not granted permission to ride as an amateur.

You May Have Met Them.

Poor conversationalists are those who, having nothing to say, go ahead and say it anyway.

Soft-Shell Eggs.

It is generally believed that the soft-shelled egg occasionally laid by the hen is due to deficiency of lime in the food. Some experiments carried out at the experiment station in Kansas, however, seem to indicate that this is not the right explanation. It rather appears to be a case of arrested development due to nervous shock, and to be analogous to abortion in mammals. Soft-shelled eggs were laid at the experiment station by hens subjected to nervous excitement. And it was shown that on an ordinary diet a hen's normal system contains enough lime for the shells of five or six eggs. If lime is withheld, then, after laying these five or six eggs the hen will cease laying. But if lime in limited quantity be given the hen lays eggs in proportion to the amount given, though the shells, on investigation, are found to be somewhat thinner than normal.

Famous Brigand Dead.

Corsicans are mourning the death of the brigand chief Bellacoscia, of whom they are almost as proud as of Napoleon. His real name was Antonia Bonelli. In consequence of a vendetta he and his brother Jacob were compelled to seek safety in the mountains. For 48 years they terrorized the country, going from province to province, and all efforts of the government to capture them were unavailing. In 1892, aged and broken down, Bellacoscia voluntarily delivered himself into the hands of justice. So great was the national admiration of his bold exploits that the courts at Ajaccio acquitted him, but the police expelled him, and he sought a home in Marseilles. He could not endure his exile more than a few months and secretly returned to end his days in the wilds of Corsica.

Profoundly Considered.

"Remember," said the man who loves trite sayings, "the early bird catches the worm."

"My dear sir," answered the professor, "this proverb, like many others, is misleading. It is often undesirable to be early. For instance, the mound-builders were the earliest people of whom we have any knowledge on this continent. Yet from the modern point of view their situation is entirely disadvantageous."—Washington Star.

No Water for Him.

He was the first tramp of the season and merrily we welcomed him in. "Here," we said, "is a glass of water. Pure, cold, delicious water. What? You refuse it, man?"

He shook his head and sighed. "I have to, sir," he said. "You see, I've got an iron constitution and water would rust it."
